

BusyBugs Play and Talk Program

Busy Body Activity 4. Ouch!

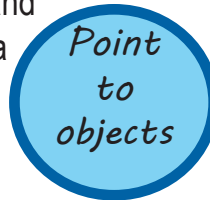

Children love plasters, and they will love putting them on the picture in this fun game, giving plenty of opportunity to learn and practise new words.

Adult's job:

Copying your BB's sounds and words is the start of having a conversation. Adding a bit helps your child learn more words.

Toddler's job:

By repeating this activity your child will begin to link the words with the objects. Soon your toddler will begin to find and point to some of the objects when you ask "Where's the...?"

What you need:

- 'Where is Howie's Owie?' game OR
- Body picture (download or draw) and sticky plasters (lamineate picture for durability)
- Non-permanent marker pen

What you do:

1. Before starting this game, draw some sores on the body picture using the non-permanent marker. Begin with the most obvious body parts e.g. 'foot', 'hand', 'tummy'
2. Put out the body picture and the sticky plasters to show your BB. Point to one of the sores and say - "Oh no. Sore hand!"
3. Give your BB a sticky plaster and say "Put plaster on"
4. "Oh no. More ouchie" (Use whichever word your child has heard, or uses, to describe a sore).

"look...sore arm"

"stick it on"
